Martin Sholl is an amateur diver. At the bottom of a man-made lake on the Colorado River, he discovered two fake skeletons seated next to a table. He alerted the sheriff's office, and authorities confirmed the skeletons were plastic. The very next morning, Martin was shocked to find that the skeletons were on every media outlet in the country. There was an interview with the sheriff, but no report mentioned Martin. Since the media didn't notice him at all, Martin pulled the skeletons out of the lake.

The Royal College of Paediatrics and Child Health warned that children's units could close. Three quarters of people training to be paediatricians are women. Specifically because doctors who opt to specialise in child health tend to be family minded, they are more likely to want to start a family of their own. Once they return to work after having a child, they often want to work part-time hours, the report stated. They view their quality of life and spending time with their children as more important than a paycheck.

A hunter looking for antelope was surprised at what he found on a slope in the Bighorn Mountains. He didn't know what he found. But whatever it was there in the ground in front of him, he couldn't get across it. It was a landslide. There are some springs in the area, so it's probable that it's groundwater related. A lot of landslides are typically related to some sort of subsurface water, so it's not really that much of a surprise.

Jennifer Connell is a human resources manager in a major company. She was at a birthday party for her 8-year-old nephew. The little boy yelled, "I love you, Aunt Jennifer" and ran into her arms. But she tumbled and broke her wrist as she hit the floor. She sued the boy for $150,000, on the grounds that she has trouble holding a plate of food at parties. Last week a jury rejected her claim. Jennifer says she loves her nephew dearly.

I want to mention a couple of ways to get useful wildlife in your garden. Preserve old brick structures. The spaces beneath old roofing tiles and naturally occurring holes in bricks are used as nesting sites by wild bees which pollinate fruit trees. And leave some piles of fallen leaves undisturbed in a damp, shady corner of the garden – frogs, toads and newts thrive on decay and get rid of thousands of unwanted insects.
